Matt Shupe was named one of the "40 under 40" by the American Association of Political Consultants last year. Over a decade of experience in business development, political policy, activism and media relations have led to his frequent mention in the news as a Political, Public Relations and Social Media Expert on FOX News, NBC and in The Associated Press, TIME magazine, The Huffington Post and city newspapers throughout the west. He has managed and staffed winning political campaigns throughout California, Oregon and Washington, while developing a consistently positive relationship with the media.

Matt earned his bachelor's degrees in both Political Science and Mass Communications and Journalism with emphasis in Public Relations from California State University, Fresno. He is also a graduate of the Republican National Committee's Campaign Management College and serves as the Political Director of the California Young Republicans Federated and is a delegate to the California Republican Party.

Come hear from our own campaign insider about the crucial November election and meet your member candidates!
