Guest Speaker - June Gilliam

Topic - "Socio-Communism: A Dead-End Path for America"

June Gilliam was born and raised in Shanghai. Following graduation from one of China's top universities, she joined the Communist Party. The American company she worked for in Shanghai sent her to the Bay Area and Sacramento where she fell in love with the U.S. Gilliam legally emigrated here in July 20 years ago. She says, "I went through many hardships as a law-abiding, poor, international student during my two years of MBA pursuit."

Witnessing the effects of communism on her country of birth, she fears that after terrorism, a "major threat facing American today is the infiltration of socio-communism." She feels that creeping socialism has eroded the foundation of our way of life through systematic attacks on our education, economy, morality, and traditional culture.

Gilliam will give us chilling insight into life inside communist China, raising our awareness of China's human rights issues that continue today. She is the business operations manager for a Fortune 500 company in the Bay area, a wife, and "supermom" of two young children.
