Why Faith Matters in Today's Culture

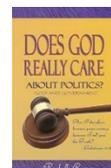

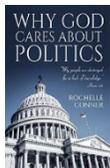

America is losing her moral compass and slipping into darkness. Our Judeo-Christian foundation is being eroded through legislation, court opinions, and today's culture. As the nation marches headlong into hedonism, there is silence from the pulpit. Spiritual and religious winds are blowing and shifting us into dark and dangerous directions. Why faith matters in today's culture is a serious examination of the spiritual battle we must engage, because "the only thing necessary for evil to triumph is for good men to do nothing". America's founding fathers knew that righteousness, morality, and virtue were necessary to maintaining liberty. Pastors were bold in proclaiming the virtues of the Christian faith. They refused to be silent and pushed back against the social evils of their day with bold proclamations. "If the time comes when America shall go to pieces, it will be from inward corruption, from the disregard of right principles, from losing sight of the fact that 'Righteousness exalts a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people'....Unless we hold to these great fundamental principles of righteousness - the Declaration of Independence, the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments, and the Sermon the Mount - America will only be a covenant with death and an agreement with hell." (Rev. Frances Grimke). The Declaration of Independence states that governments are instituted among men and derive their just powers from the consent of the governed...Experience has shown that mankind is more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. Religious liberty is the foundation of all liberty, to what have we become accustomed? Rochelle is a wife, mother of two children, five grandchildren, and one great-grandchild. Her Father was a Pastor and military veteran of the Vietnam War. She has been active in politics and ministry for more than 25+ years. Her resume is mighty impressive!
